

Bernard J. Turnock MD, MPH

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

*Bernard J. (Barney) Turnock MD, MPH is currently Clinical Professor and Director of the Division of Community Health Sciences and Director of the Preparedness and Emergency Response Learning Center at the School of Public Health, University of Illinois at Chicago. Since he joined UIC School of Public Health in 1990, he has also served as Acting Dean and Associate Dean for Public Health Practice. His major areas of interest involve performance measurement, capacity building, and workforce development within the public health system. He is board certified in Preventive Medicine and Public Health and has extensive practice experience having served as Director of the Illinois Department of Public Health from 1985 through 1990, Deputy Commissioner and Acting Commissioner of the Chicago Department of Health, and state program director for Maternal and Child Health and Emergency Medical Services during his distinguished career. He has played major roles in a variety of public policy and public health issues in Illinois since 1978. He frequently consults on a variety of public health and health care issues, and has served as a member of the Illinois State Board of Health and as President of the Illinois Public Health Association. He is the author of a widely read text on public health practice, Public Health: What It Is and How It Works, now in its fifth edition, and two other recently published works titled Public Health: Career Choices That Make a Difference and Essentials of Public Health (second edition). He has received two prestigious awards from the American Public Health Association: one for Excellence in Health Planning and Practice and another for Excellence in Health Administration. He is also a recipient of 2008 ASPH/Pfizer Faculty Award for Excellence in Public Health Practice and the School of Public Health's "Golden Apple" award for excellence in teaching. Dr. Turnock was the developer and instructor for UIC's first completely online course in 1997.*
